HALLOWEEN

Celebrating Halloween is as compelling at 60 as it was at 6. Who doesn't like to pretend, just for a short time, to be someone or something else. Everyone deserves a break from daily trials and tribulations... just a couple of hours (or days) before buckling down and getting back to business. So, enjoy those witches and ghosts and goblins; don't eat tooooo much chandy; and CELEBRATE the mystery and the joy of holiday!!

In case you're out of practice... put on your costume, hold out your plastic pumpkin and repeat after me... "Trick or Treat" -- then smile behind your mask and enjoy yourself.

The magic of Halloween lies in the mystery, the magic, children's giggles, wide eyes peering through masks, and the joy of filling plastic pumpkins and halloween bags with goodies.

Author Insight

Halloween

Though people celebrate differently, the trappings we associate with a holiday help to create shared memories and a sense of togetherness. No matter how creative and varied the costumes, or whether or not we trick-or-treat, pumpkins, black cats, goblins, and witches will be part of everyone's Halloween memories.

Book Excerpt

The Wake-Up Call

Frannie squealed, "This is a Halloween paradise!" Scattered around the room were corn stalks and pumpkins, and hay bales for seating. "Can you imagine the work that went into carving all of those jack o' lanterns? I love the way they flicker with the candles inside. And the music just makes it perfect"
