EMBRACE CHANGE!

Even though 2021 has every chance of being an improvement over 2020 without much help from us, making the most of it requires that we actively invest in the future. We must make changes to old behaviors that have not served us well, and implement new behaviors with gusto and commitment.

Change is a good thing if we approach it with enthusiasm and purpose.

Some things go away on their own, either because we're smart enough to let them go, or they're just plain uncomfortable.

Against the World

Robin jumped from the bus and hurried toward the park. "Mom will see how great it will be for all of us to be together in Dallas." Her smile faded as she scanned the empty park benches. "Did she get cold feet? Could she be stuck because that shithead's still at home?"

She started off in the direction of her mother's house, then stopped in her tracks. "What am I doing? I can't show up there." Robin reversed her steps, then dropped dejectedly onto a bench. She fidgeted for nearly an hour, then rose and trudged toward the bus stop.
