The Wake-Up Call

Dr. Grosvenor returned the chem tests in lab on Tuesday after vacation. Frannie held her test, folded lengthwise, for several long minutes before opening it. "The test questions might as well have been written in Greek! I waited too long to start studying." She unfolded the paper revealing the red "F" in the upper right corner. Devastation washed over her, and she hurried from the lab before she burst into tears. In the dorm, tears blurred her vision and a torrent of thoughts spilled over one another. "I've only got six weeks left before finals and I'm failing."
